

LogiXML Partners with BravePoint to Deliver Business Intelligence Solutions and Services

McLean, VA (March 2, 2010) LogiXML, the web-based business intelligence (BI) pioneer, today announced a partnership with BravePoint Inc., a leading provider of business intelligence consulting and training. The partnership will enable LogiXML to satisfy increasing demand for business intelligence solutions from customers, combining its innovative products with BravePoint's proven success and expertise in complementary BI services.

LogiXML's unique elemental development approach enables users to build BI applications far more quickly and easily than traditional products, resulting in a significant time-to-value advantage for its customers. BravePoint, known for excellent customer service, can ensure the successful development and deployment of BI applications through its Business Intelligence Practice – specializing in consulting, integration and training services.

"The strength of LogiXML's products lies in their ease of use and rapid time to deployment," said Sean Garguilo, Director of Sales at BravePoint. "Their superior products coupled with BravePoint's expertise in delivering quality BI consulting services and training will benefit clients through shorter development and deployment cycles."

"We are excited to be working with BravePoint given their business intelligence expertise and knowledge of LogiXML's products," said Steven Schneider, Vice President of Sales, LogiXML. "BravePoint's 23 years of consulting experience will be a huge benefit to customers who want to reap the benefits of business intelligence but don't necessarily have the expertise or staff to do so."
